

Grace Communion Seminary

BI522 / NT502 Gospels

Short Syllabus

Instructor: Michael Morrison, PhD

Course Description

This course examines the four canonical Gospels to see what each of these four portraits of Jesus tells us. Students will explore the literary and theological relationships between the Gospels, and the major themes each one presents. Students will describe how the teachings of Jesus can be used in our very different circumstances today.

Student learning outcomes for BI522

Students will be able to:

1. Describe scholarly proposals about the literary relationships between the Synoptic Gospels.
2. List the distinctive teachings of each of the four Gospels, and describe how each contributes to a more complete picture of who Jesus was, and what he said and did.
3. Explain the challenges involved in using the Gospels as sources of historical information, and give a reasoned response to the challenges.
4. Analyze a passage in the Gospels in light of its historical and literary setting, to describe its message for the original readers.
5. Describe the cultural and theological differences between Jesus' circumstances and our own, and explain how his teachings are useful in the church today despite those differences.

Requirements

1. Ten lectures. Lectures will be posted each Monday for the first ten weeks. See the Academic Catalog, section VI, for study suggestions. If you read the lectures carefully, and take notes, the quizzes will be easy. The lectures average about 24 pages each week, and we expect that you will spend about 2 hours on each lecture.

2. Six forum discussions: In six weeks, a question will be posted on Monday; students must make an initial comment by Thursday, and they must reply to at least one other student by the end of Sunday.
3. Three quizzes. There will be three short open-book quizzes, about the lectures and assigned readings.
4. Two textbooks. The textbooks total about 700 pages; we expect the average student to take about 45 hours to read the books – that’s about 4½ hours each week.
5. Three papers: Students may choose one of three passages for the focus of these papers: either Matt. 26:1-16, or Luke 14:1-14, or John 15:1-17.
 - a. First, a 5-page paper on the historical and literary setting of the passage. Students must consult and interact with at least two modern¹ scholarly books, not counting the assigned textbooks for this class. See the document “How to Write the First Paper” for further details. Some students need the detailed instructions more than other do, but please follow the instructions. It will help you analyze the passage in a systematic way, and it will help me read and grade the papers in a consistent way.
 - b. Second, a 5-page paper analyzing the key words and original message of the passage. Students must consult and interact with at least three modern scholarly books, not counting the assigned textbooks for this class, including at least two modern, major² commentaries. Students may need to obtain these through an interlibrary loan, so they should select a passage and identify potential resources as soon as the class begins. Significant portions of some commentaries can be read online. See the document “How to Write the Second Paper” for further details.

- c. Last, a 4-page paper discussing how the passage is relevant in our own context, either in theology and/or in ethics. Outside research is permitted but not required for this paper. See the document “How to Write the Third Paper” for further details.

Assignments, estimated hours, and grade weighting

Assignment	Hours*	Percentage of grade
Reading the website documents	22
Reading discussions and making responses	6	15
Taking quizzes	3	10
Reading the textbooks	45
Studying for the quizzes	3
Writing first two papers	50	50
Writing third paper	8	25
Total – about 12 hours each week	137	100

* This is an estimate for the “average” student. Some students will complete the course requirements in less total time, and some will take more time.

² Major means at least 15 pages for each chapter in the Gospel you are studying. See lists posted at <https://sites.google.com/view/biblestudyresources/gospels>.
