TH515 Seminar in Theology

Short Syllabus

Instructor: Dr. Gary Deddo

To send a message to the instructor see Appendix B, page 10.

Course description

This course involves research and discussion of a selected topic in theological ethics. Students will write a research paper, present that paper to other students, and lead an online discussion of the topic. Weekly participation is required.

Prerequisite: At least two courses in theology with a grade of B+ or better. The class must have at least three students, but not more than six.

Estimated workload: For a student to do well in this course, the student will need to invest a total of 146 hours, or about 12 hours per week of reading, participating on the website, and writing papers.

Reading Requirement for Paper Research

(An additional 200 pages is required to prepare for your final paper submission. This research reading is to be taken from the Secondary Reading list, Appendix C: Additional Course Bibliography and other relevant sources related to your particular paper topic.)

Student learning outcomes

This course fits primarily into the second GCS student learning outcome: Students will be able to reason from a sound theological basis as new covenant Christians centered in Incarnational Trinitarian faith. This course will require students to ...

1. Research and analyze a selected topic in theological ethics.
2. Craft a paper designed to analyze and critique an ethical argument made by another author (Christian or secular) or to inform and persuade others about an ethical topic.
3. Critique the presentations of other students in an informed and civil manner, so that all might grow in their understanding of the topics.

For more details on Academic Policy, see Appendix B.

Requirements and assignments

1. Read course website materials. The course will begin with introductory lectures by the professor, giving direction to the course. Students must read all the student papers as they are posted in subsequent weeks, and keep reading and participating in the ongoing discussions.

2. Read the textbooks and other required assigned reading. Textbooks will be assigned. For the Seminar in Theological Ethics, about 800 pages will be assigned; it is expected that students will read another 200 pages as they research their paper. Total reading to be completed for the Seminar in Theological Ethics is 1000 pages.

3. Online Forums. There will be two weekly online forums for the instructor and students to interact with each other, as if in a classroom setting. At first there will be only one Instructor Forum for discussion the course readings and lectures. Once student presentations begin in the fourth week a second forum, the Class Forum, will begin. That forum will facilitate interaction for two weeks on the two student presentations posted.

-Forum interaction requirements:

- a) For the Instructor Forum, students should post at least one reply to each of the instructor questions posed. These will be on the weekly assigned lectures and the readings for that week.
- b) For the Class Forum, students should post at least one reply to each of the two presentations (2) directing comments and queries to the respective presenters made that week by Thursday, and another two posting for each presentation (4) in further reply to the presentations and the replies of the presenters or other students. (Six total postings for the week.)

In the following week, at least one reply should be made to each of the instructor's posting that week (2, one for each presentation), and one reply to each of the presenters (2), and one reply to another student's comments on one or both of the presentations (1 or 2). (Five or six total postings for the week.) These should be completed by the end of Friday so that the Presenters can make their final responses before the end of Sunday.

c) The requirement of the presenters during the two weeks their papers are being discussed, is to interact well with the postings of the other students and the instructor. Not every comment requires a reply. But most queries directed to you, the presenter, should be addressed.

The online discussion is a major part of the learning that will occur in this class. Weekly participation is important, so don't sign up for the class if you are going to be gone for a week. It is important that the forum comments involve critical thinking – adding further support on points of agreement, offering supporting reasons when not in agreement, but without being disagreeable. This counts for one third of the final grade.

4. Research and write. Student papers will form the initial basis of discussion. The paper topic must be submitted to and be approved by the course instructor. See Appendix D for a short list of potential topics. Topics should be submitted no later than in the third week of the course.

a) The papers will present facts and organize those facts in such a way as to defend or critique particular ethical argument from an incarnational and trinitarian theological perspective that is biblical, Christ-centered and historically orthodox.¹

¹ Students who present papers early in the semester will not have much time to research the topic. This will be taken into consideration when assigning a grade to the

b) Presentations of the first draft should be posted by noon on the Monday it is due. That week and the following week the presenters should be prepared to interact with the other students extensively on the Class Forum.

c) The first two or three paper presentations in the term should be an analysis of a Christian or secular argument for a particular ethical issue written by another author. The fourth through sixth papers/ presentations of the term can either be a thorough analysis of a given Christian or secular ethical argument or can be the student's own position paper making a theological ethical argument for a particular ethical position.

d) This paper will be revised after the discussion and submitted as a final paper. About 4250 words of text (12 pt. double spaced), plus the Works Cited.

first draft. But further research should be done before the final draft of the paper is submitted at the end of the semester. In some cases the student may come to a different conclusion because of the discussion and additional research.

For a guide to formatting your papers, see "How to Format a GCS Paper," posted at <http://www.gcs.edu/course/view.php?id=23>.

Assignments, estimated hours, and grade weighting

Assignment	Hours *	Percentage of grade
Reading the syllabus and lectures	8	required
Reading student papers ²	9	required
Reading discussions and making responses ³	18	33.33
Reading the textbooks and required reading	50	required
Reading additional texts on the topic of research	15	required
Writing research paper and presenting it to the class	36	33.33
Revising the paper after the discussion	10	33.33
Total – about 12 hours each week	146	100

* Some students will complete the course requirements in less time, and some will take more time. A student who reads quickly may be slow in writing papers, and vice versa.

Appendix A: Grading standards

Grades will be assigned according to the following criteria:

- A to A- = Outstanding work: Above and beyond the requirements; outstanding effort and significant achievement are evident. Some measure of remarkable skill, creativity, or energy is also evident. Although most students in this class do great work, we cannot give an A to every student who does well.
- B+ to B = Above average work: Fulfills all aspects of the assignment and goes a bit beyond minimum competence to demonstrate reflection, research, and integration of the texts that show extra effort, achievement or improvement. This is a very honorable grade.
- B- to C = Average work: Fulfills all aspects of the assignment with competence. Assignments are completed as assigned. This is also an honorable grade.
- C- = Below average work: Below average either because some aspect of the assignment has not been fulfilled or because the number of errors interferes with clear communication. A grade of C- may also indicate failure to follow directions, failure to follow specific recommendations, or failure to demonstrate effort and improvement.
- D = Not acceptable.
- F = Not acceptable, either because the student did not complete the assignment as directed, or because the level of performance is below an acceptable level for graduate level work.

The final grade will be calculated based on a 100-point scale. Letter grades are assigned as follows:

95 - 100 % = A	77 - 79 % = C+
90 - 94 % = A-	74 - 76 % = C
87 - 89 % = B+	70 - 73 % = C-
84 - 86 % = B	60 - 69 % = D
80 - 83 % = B-	00 - 59 % = F

Appendix D: Potential Topics and Papers for Discussion

All these general topics will need to be narrowed to one aspect of the contemporary discussion in the church, or between the church and a particular relevant socio-cultural context. Two potential narrowed subtopics should be submitted for approval during no later than the third week, after hearing the introductory lectures of the professor and first chapters of Bloesch. The professor and student will then decide together the final topic for the paper and presentation.
